- No es un conjunto de reglas de catalogación
- Es
 - Modelo conceptual de nuestro universo bibliográfico
 - Basado en el modelo de entidad-relación desarrollado para bases de datos
 - También orientado a modelos de datos vinculados

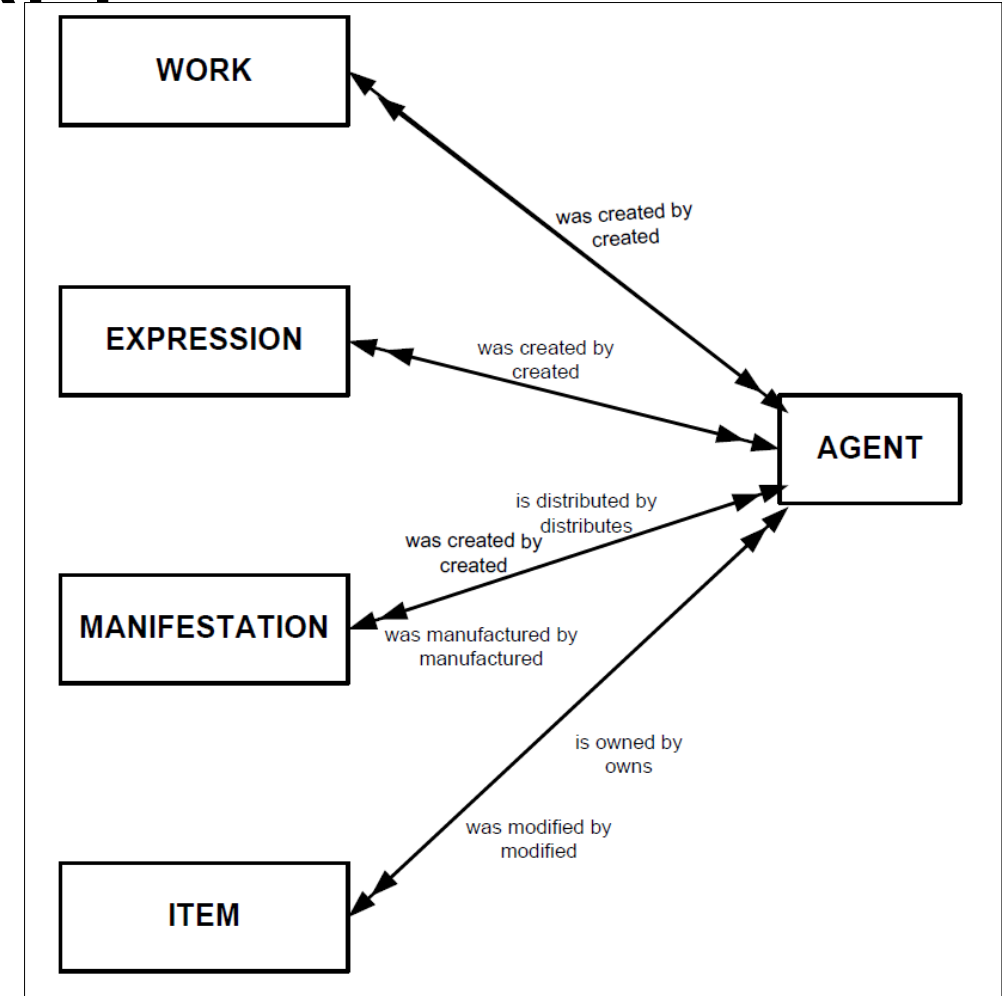

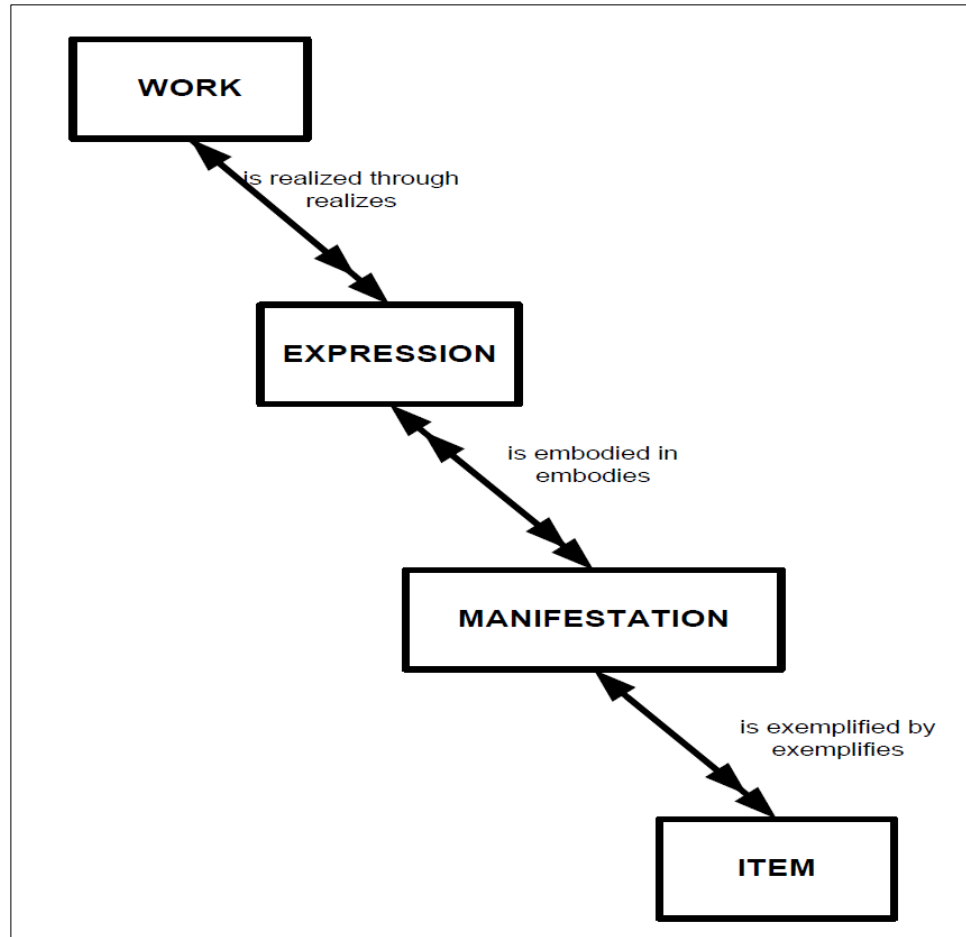

Modelo de Entidad-Relación

- Entidad: Algo que puede identificarse claramente
- Relación: Una asociación entre dos o más entidades
- Atributo: Una característica que puede identificar instancias de entidades o relaciones

RDA 2020: ¿Qué sigue?

- A partir del 30 de abril de 2019, el sitio beta de RDA ya no está en revisión constante (al menos no el texto)
 - El texto en inglés ahora es estable para
 - Los vocabularios de valores (Esquemas de Codificación de Vocabulario)
 - El conjunto de elementos
 - La entidad y los capítulos de elementos
 - Los capítulos de orientación y recursos
 - Estabilización necesaria para
 - Traductores
 - Escritores de declaraciones de política
 - Desarrolladores de perfiles de aplicaciones
 - Escritores de materiales complementarios
 - Editor de ejemplos de RDA

RDA 2020: ¿Qué sigue?

- Modificación continuará por
 - Cambios menores editoriales
 - Corrección de errores tipográficos e inexactitudes
 - Consistencia
 - Mejor redacción para soportar traducciones
 - Otros cambios, si
 - Sin impacto significativo en traductores, redactors de declaraciones de políticas, etc.
 - Sin efecto sobre el resultado de la aplicación de las instrucciones
 - Adición y revision de ejemplos
 - Mejoras/Adiciones a la interfaz de Toolkit

RDA 2020: ¿Qué sigue?

- La versión “BETA” de RDA aún no es oficial
- Primero, debe suceder lo siguiente:
 - Finalización de traducciones claves (finlandés, francés, alemán, español)—objetivo: diciembre de 2019
 - Finalización y publicación de declaraciones de política—objetivo: febrero de 2020
 - RSC y la Junta de RDA deben acordar por unanimidad que el Proyecto 3R (revision de RDA y Toolkit) está complete
- Cuando se hace esa declaración, comienza un reloj de cuenta regresiva de un año
 - El RDA Toolkit original permanecerá active durante un año, luego de lo cual será retirado
- PCC y otros (bibliotecas nacionales, otras agencias) fijarán una fecha de implementación

Below the search bar, there is a dropdown menu with 'All' selected. The search results page shows 'Manifestation > title proper' and 'title proper' in large blue text. To the right, there is a 'Related Sections (0)' dropdown with 'LCPCC_PS' selected. Below this, there is a 'Definition and Scope' section with a paragraph: 'A title of manifestation that is selected for preference in a specific application or context.' and another paragraph: 'An alternative title is treated as part of a title proper.' There is also an 'Element Reference' button. Below that, there is a 'Prerecording' section with a paragraph: 'A title proper does not include:' and a list of two items: 'Manifestation: other title information' and 'Manifestation: parallel other title information'. At the bottom, there is a paragraph: 'A file name or data set name is not considered a title proper unless it is the only title appearing in the manifestation.'

Resource description

Resource description

RDA provides guidance and instructions that focus on the description of the kinds of resource that are found in library and cultural heritage collections.

An information resource is a tangible or intangible object that contains information of interest to the users of a collection to which it belongs.

The characteristics of an information resource are categorized by four aspects represented by the resource entities: Work, Expression, Manifestation, and Item.

The Work entity describes characteristics of the intellectual and abstract ideas that engender the content of a resource.

The Expression entity describes characteristics of the content of a resource.

The Manifestation entity describes characteristics that are common to all physical copies of a resource.

- A published manifestation is usually manufactured, published, and distributed in multiple copies
- An unpublished manifestation is usually produced as a single copy

The Item entity describes characteristics that distinguish one copy of a manifestation from other copies.

Construction of a description of an information resource

Construction of a description of an information resource

A well-formed description of an information resource should conform with the basic guidance and instructions for constructing and relating its component aspects.

For guidance on the entities and elements that are required for a well-formed description of an information resource, see Coherent description of an information resource.

For guidance on the elements that are required for a well-formed description of a resource entity as an aspect of an information resource, see Minimum description of a resource entity.

For guidance and instructions on the construction of a well-formed description that meets the requirements of a cataloguing agent or local application, see Effective description.

April Update to the Beta Site

April Update to the Beta Site jhennelly Mon, 04/29/2019 - 23:10

Today there will be a new release to the RDA Toolkit beta site. The release will go live in the evening in North America. Part of the release is still in a testing phase and will follow in a week or two. An announcement will go out when the follow-up release is live.

This release includes the stabilized English language version of the RDA standard. This marks a significant milestone in the 3R project as the standard is now ready for translation and evaluation by policy statement authoring groups. Learn more about the English language stabilization from the RDA Steering Committee's announcement.
